

KING GEORGE OF GREECE ASSASSINATED BY FANATIC

Aged Monarch of the Hellenes Is Slain While Taking Usual Stroll; Crown Prince Constantine New Ruler

Potentates Who Have Fallen Victims of Assassins' Hands

There is scarcely a country in the world that has not at some time felt the hand of the assassin. Emperors, kings, presidents and statesmen have been slain by anarchists, persons disgruntled because of real or imaginary wrongs, fanatics, insane persons and political conspirators. Since the year 1801 the toll of the assassin among the world's rulers and presidents of republics is:

Paul, emperor of Russia, March 24, 1901.
Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, April 14, 1865.
Abdul Aziz, sultan of Turkey, June 4, 1876.
James A. Garfield, president of the United States, July 2, 1881.
Alexander, emperor of Russia, March 18, 1881.
Sadi Carnot, president of France, June 24, 1894.
Nasr-Eddin, shah of Persia, May 1, 1896.
Bordaberry, president of Uruguay, August 25, 1897.
Elizabeth, empress of Austria, September 10, 1898.
General Hervey, president of the Dominican Republic, July 26, 1902.
Humbert, king of Italy, July 29, 1900.
William McKinley, president of the United States, September 6, 1901.
Alexander, king of Serbia, June 11, 1903.
Ljrag, queen of Serbia, June 11, 1903.
Carlos, king of Portugal, February 1, 1908.
Luis, crown prince of Portugal, February 1, 1908.
Many attempts at assassination have been made in recent years upon notable persons, among them being Theodore Roosevelt.

SALONIKI, March 18.—King George of Greece was assassinated while walking in the streets of Saloniki this afternoon. The assassin was a Greek of low mental type, who gave his name as Aleko Schinas. He shot the king through the heart.

The king was accompanied only by an aide de camp, Lieutenant Colonel Francoulli. The assassin of the king fired one shot from a seven-chamber revolver. The tragedy caused intense excitement.

Schinas was seized immediately and overpowered. The wounded king was lifted into a carriage which was hurried to the Paphos hospital. He was still breathing when placed in the carriage but died before reaching the hospital.

Prince Nicholas, the king's third son, and other officers hurried to the hospital. On arrival, Prince Nicholas pronounced the king's death and speaking in a voice choked with sobs, said: "It is my deep grief to have to announce to you the death of our beloved king and invite you to swear fidelity to your new sovereign, King Constantine."

Crown Prince Constantine, who succeeds King George, at present is at Janina. He is expected to come here with all possible speed.

The assassin of the king is an evil-looking fellow, about 40 years of age. On being arrested, he refused to explain his motive for the crime. He declared that his name was Aleko Schinas and, in reply to an officer's remark that he was against governments, Schinas maintained a perfectly impassive demeanor.

Precautions were taken at once throughout the city, and perfect order is maintained. The king fell into the arms of his aide when shot. Two soldiers ran up on hearing the firing, and helped to support him. He was placed in a carriage and efforts were made to stop the bleeding, but he breathed his last on his way to the hospital.

When Prince Nicholas heard the official announcement of his father's death, he shouted: "Long live the king!" Prince Nicholas is the only member of the royal family in Saloniki. Mourning emblems are displayed everywhere.

ENGLISH WOMEN STARVE TO GET VOTE; AMERICAN SISTERS PLAN MASS MEETING

Sylvia Pankhurst Forcibly Fed; Deportation to Ireland Is Suggested

LONDON, March 18.—The home secretary, addressing the house of commons today in a discussion of the government's handling of the militant suffragette section, declared the only alternatives under the existing law was to let the imprisoned hunger striking suffragettes die or let them go. He refused to release them, and he said he wished he could deport them but it was doubtful whether parliament would grant him the power to do so.

"Send them to Ireland," interjected a racy-Hibernian voice. Mr. McKenna told how one woman in prison spiced her cell with hot water and remained uncovered all night in the hope of catching her death of cold. Others pretended to take their food but surreptitiously starved themselves so as to become exhausted and die in prison. Some had tortured themselves by thrusting their fingers into their mouths and refusing to touch milk or water.

"They are executed," he said, "by fanatical determination not merely to bring the law into contempt, but to martyrize themselves so that their heroic example may act as a stimulus to others engaged in the cause."

Disclose Conspiracy. Sir Arthur Markham, a Liberal member, remarked that there was a conspiracy among militant suffragettes to kidnap Secretary McKenna. He hoped the forcible feeding awaiting the home secretary would give him the backbone he lacked at present.

The militant suffragette union made public today a letter received by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst from her daughter Sylvia, now in Holloway prison. It says:

"Dearest Mother: I am fighting, fighting, fighting. I have four, five or six attendants every day as well as two doctors. I am fed through the stomach tube twice a day. They pry open my mouth with a steel gag, pressing it in where there is a gap in my teeth. I resist all the time. My gums are always bleeding. I am afraid they may be saying that we do not resist, yet my shoulders are bruised by the struggling while they hold the tube in my throat. I used to feel I should go mad at first. I think they feared I was pretty near it, but I have got over that and my digestion is the only thing most likely to suffer now."

HYDRO CASE IN U. S. OPPOSES SUPREME COURT

EXPECT DECISION WILL BE GIVEN SOON

Arguments Begun Yesterday by City Attorney McKesson and R. L. Holland

By R. M. McCLINTOCK.
DENVER, March 18.—After having remained without action in the supreme court from December, 1911, until the present, the supreme court this morning before a full bench resumed argument in the case of Colorado Springs vs. the Hydro-Electric company, a decision, it is now believed, will be handed down within a few months. City Attorney C. L. McKesson appeared for Colorado Springs, while R. L. Holland presented the case for the electric company.

The city claims the right to purchase electric power from the hydro company at the same rate charged the Colorado Springs Electric company, the most favored customer of the Hydro company. The company resists this claim, contending that section 9 of the Jackson franchise does not mean what the city says it means.

Attorney Holland went exhaustively into the company's contention. In the first place he said the court could not decide that the price paid by the electric company actually is, since many factors enter into it in addition to the money paid over. Among these factors he mentioned the fact that the electric

BUDGET MAY BE CUT AT EXTRA SESSION

President Wilson Declares in Favor of Reducing Federal Expenses

WASHINGTON, March 18.—A general fight to cut down federal expenditures and bring them within the estimated revenues of the government, is to be made in the special session of congress as soon as the tariff bills have been disposed of by the house. President Wilson's letter to Senator Tillman, made public today, in which he declared himself in favor of a "carefully considered and widely planned budget," lent new strength to the plan now well under way in congress, to bring the country's enormous expenditures under some central control.

While President Wilson's budget ideas have not been outlined to members of congress, it is not expected that the budget system advocated by President Taft and prepared by the economy commission again will be urged as the basis of the Democratic appropriation system. This scheme has many bitter opponents, including the leaders of the great committees, which now handle appropriations, and it is expected that efforts in congress will be directed along different lines.

The economy committee appointed by the Democrats of the house in their caucus of March 5, will not meet until after the house has disposed of tariff bills in the extra session. Efforts then will be made to devise a plan for handling the estimates and appropriations that come before the regular session in December.

A sharp division exists between Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriation committee, who favors giving all appropriation bills to that committee with authority to act as a general budget committee, and Representative Sherry of Kentucky, who has proposed a special budget committee of the house to comprise the chairman and leading members of a number of important committees of various budget plans. Mr. Sherry intends to confer fully with President Wilson before attempting to agree on any system of general control over expenditures.

FRIEDMANN PATIENTS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

NEW YORK, March 18.—Marked improvement in the patients inoculated with his antituberculous vaccine about 10 days ago was noted by Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann when he examined them today, according to Dr. Friedmann and his assistants, tonight. Sixteen of the 11 persons inoculated appeared for the examination.

Dr. Friedmann said the physicians present at the examination had been very enthusiastic regarding the results achieved in so short a time. The doctor took occasion to deny that he had treated patients for gain.

"Large sums of money have been offered to me," he declared, "but I have not accepted any money for treatment. I came here to cure tuberculosis, and not for money."

REFUSED FOOD, CONVICTS KILL ONE, WOUND EIGHT

HOUSTON, Tex., March 18.—When convicts on the state farm near Houston refused to work today, the guards attempted to take away their food, and before the mutiny which resulted could be quelled, one of the convicts, a Mexican, was killed and eight others were wounded. The men attacked their keepers with knives.

U. S. OPPOSES CHINESE LOAN

President Wilson Issues Statement Defining His Attitude

FAVORS OPEN DOOR POLICY

Disapproves, However, of Conditions That Would Be Imposed on New Republic

WASHINGTON, March 18.—President Wilson tonight, in a statement approved by his cabinet, after two hours of discussion, announced that his administration had declined to request the group of American bankers to continue their negotiations for participation in the $125,000,000 loan desired by the Chinese government. The statement follows:

"We are informed that, at the request of the last administration, a certain group of American bankers undertook to participate in the loan now desired by the government of China (approximately $125,000,000). Our government wished American bankers to participate along with the bankers of other nations, because it desired that the good will of the United States towards China should be exhibited in this practical way; that American capital should have access to that great country, and that the United States should be in a position to share with the other powers any political responsibility that might be associated with the development of the foreign relations of China in connection with her industrial and commercial enterprises. The present administration has been asked by this group of bankers whether it would also request them to participate in the loan.

Disapproves Conditions of Loan. "The representatives of the bankers, through whom the administration was approached, declared that they would continue to seek a share of the loan under the proposed agreements only if expressly requested to do so by the government. The administration has declined to make such request because it did not approve the conditions of the loan or the implications of responsibility on its own part, which it was plainly told would be involved in the request.

"The conditions of the loan seem to us to touch very nearly the administrative independence of China itself, and this administration does not feel that it ought, even by implication, to be a party to those conditions. The responsibility on its part which would be implied in requesting the bankers to undertake the loan might conceivably go the length in some unhappy contingency of forcible interference in the financial, and even the political, affairs of that great oriental state, thus awakening to a consciousness of its power and of its obligations to its people.

"The conditions include not only the pledging of particular taxes, some of them antiquated and burdensome, to secure the loan, but also the administration of these taxes by foreign agents. The responsibility on the part of our government implied in the encouragement of a loan thus secured and administered is plain enough and is obnoxious to the principles upon which the government of our people rests."

George B. Cox and Ten Other Prominent Cincinnatians Must Face Charges

CINCINNATI, March 18.—George B. Cox, former political leader here and at one time president of the Cincinnati Trust company, together with 10 other officers and directors of the trust company, were charged with having violated the state banking laws in the Cincinnati county grand jury. The others indicted were:

Nathaniel S. Keith, secretary of the trust company.
Fletcher R. Williams, treasurer.
J. M. Crawford, director, once consul general at St. Petersburg.
Charles H. Davis, director, former president of the Second National bank here.
David G. Edwards, director.

GARRISON FAVORS A LARGER ARMY

FIGHTING FORCE IS NOW INADEQUATE, HE SAYS

Proposes Military Reserve and Short Term Enlistment for Men

WASHINGTON, March 18.—In an official statement of policy today, Secretary of War Garrison declared in favor of immediate preparation of the military forces of the United States to meet any emergency, holding a discussion of disarmament to be entirely out of place in the consideration of what the United States government should do to meet existing conditions. The secretary proposed retention of the regular army at its present strength, improvement of the national guard and creation of a reserve.

"Declaring that he was not urging militarism, Mr. Garrison said the leading men in the United States army do not advocate militarism, which means the existence of a large standing army, but precisely the reverse, a small, compact, but thoroughly efficient army. "No one will pretend," he added, "that with a mobile force of less than 35,000 men in the United States proper we are prepared, in fact, if you don't alter the condition, we are not even prepared to prepare. If we are called on to meet force with force, we simply sacrifice men and money in a shameful way. We literally send men out to acquire their education in armies under the fire of the enemy the enormity of which is enough to cause one to shrink from permitting it."

Proposes Military Reserve. For relief, the secretary proposed a reserve of trained officers and men, and that the United States should have a position to share with the other powers any political responsibility that might be associated with the development of the foreign relations of China in connection with her industrial and commercial enterprises. The present administration has been asked by this group of bankers whether it would also request them to participate in the loan.

Regarding the reserve, the secretary suggested that this best could be created without bringing into existence a large professional soldiery by shortening the present four-year enlistment to two years, so as to train more men in short periods, and turn them back into civil life, immediately available in case of need.

"Many fine young fellows," he said, "would delight in a short, effective military training, if it did not unduly interfere with their starting in civil pursuits."

To insure a sufficient supply of officers, the secretary would make good use of the academy at West Point, turning into civil life the graduates who are not needed in time of peace.

Finally, he suggested an adequate scheme should be provided so that volunteers may be readily called, officered, equipped and trained when necessity arises, declaring that the first two years of our civil war revealed the frightful waste of life and treasure involved in sending untrained men into the field.

In conclusion, the secretary asserted that the execution of his plans would entail no additional cost and earnestly appealed to all citizens to aid in this situation, "which bitterly cries for a remedy."

DARING TEMPERATURE 30 DEGREES BELOW, LOCAL WOMAN IS BAPTIZED

Mrs. Catherine Cragin, Wife of Former Colorado College Professor, Obeys Supposed Vision

While a sharp, bleak wind blew across the waters and the mercury hovered near 30 degrees, Mrs. Catherine L. Cragin of 1715 Wood avenue, this city, received the triple baptismal service of the apostolic faith in Falk pond, Lynn, Mass., at sunrise yesterday.

Mrs. Cragin declared that she had a vision in which her Savior appeared before her and instructed her to go to Lynn, the command of the Lord being that she receive the triple baptismal service.

Obeying the command, she traveled 2,000 miles to Lynn, leaving Colorado Springs three weeks ago. Upon arriving at Lynn she explained her mission to Elder Adoniram Rawson, who accompanied Mrs. Cragin into the water and performed the ceremony. They walked into the icy water until it reached her chin, and then, trembling from exposure, they sang gospel hymns.

She was immersed three times, first in the name of the Father, second in the name of the Son and third in the name of the Holy Ghost. Mrs. Cragin is now an ordained minister of the apostolic faith.

During the service a dozen members of the sect witnessed the ceremony from the shore, and at its conclusion knelt in prayer on the banks. This is the second time that Mrs. Cragin has been baptized in this faith.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS SEED AND FEED FUND IS SHOWN

Farmers Put on Their Feet; 80 Per Cent Available for Repayment Now; 95 Per Cent Assured; New Loan Co. Boosted

RESULTS OF SEED AND FEED FUND.
Total fund subscribed $ 5,000
Total fund on hand 6,250
Percentage to be returned on first repayment 80
Probable percentage to be returned on second repayment 10 to 15
Value of crops raised by farmers participating in seed and feed fund $100,000 to $125,000
Number of farmers assisted 125

Brought new business to Colorado Springs merchants and business houses.
Made permanent residents of numerous families who otherwise would have been compelled to abandon homesteads.
Gave encouragement to the men and women who are settling eastern El Paso county, western Lincoln and southern Elbert counties.
Placed Colorado Springs and its farming sections into close commercial relationship.
Beginning of campaign for practical development of agricultural resources on scientific and approved basis.

Plans for the Future.
Organization of farm loan company with capital stock of $50,000 to loan money on "business" basis, at reasonable rates of interest, to farmers who will follow approved lines of dairying, poultry raising and stock growing with scientific dry-farming methods.
This company is already incorporated, and at last night's meeting about $20,000 of its capital stock was subscribed.

Educational work, already begun along practical lines by El Paso county, in cooperation with U. S. department of agriculture, through appointment of W. H. Lauck as county agriculturalist.
Establishment of automobile truck line, along new county road, to give farmers market in Colorado Springs for products they raise.

Money Well Expended.
"Never was $5,000 expended in El Paso county which has brought the results that have come from the seed and feed fund of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce."

This significant statement, made by Irving Howbert, banker, business man, planer and one who has played a prominent part in all movements for the upbuilding of the community during the last 40 years, voiced the sentiment of the meeting of subscribers to the seed and feed fund, held last night at the Chamber of Commerce to receive reports from the trustees of the fund and to outline plans for the further development of eastern El Paso and adjacent counties.

John Lennox, chairman of the trustees of the seed and feed fund, submitted a detailed report showing the financial operations, and showing that 80 per cent of the subscription made by each person is now ready to be repaid. He made the further statement that loans outstanding which are considered good will increase this to a total of from 80 to 95 per cent when the final disbursement is made. His report showed that the crops raised by farmers participating in the fund which otherwise would not have been grown, were valued at from $100,000 to $125,000, a large portion of which were marketed in Colorado Springs.

On behalf of the trustees, as well as the agricultural committee and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Lennox then outlined plans for the farm loan company, recently incorporated, with the following men for directors: Irving Howbert, president; E. W. Giddings, vice president; John Lennox, secretary-treasurer; E. S. Kaufman, W. R. Armstrong, J. G. Dorn, Leonard E. Curtis, B. A. Banta.

"If Mr. Bryan really expresses the views of the cabinet and the president, the relations between Great Britain and the United States may enter upon a phase which would be regarded with extreme regret by a majority of the sensible moderate persons of both countries."

The Standard describes Secretary Bryan's speech as "a fine example of virulent and inflated nonsense which the inferior kind of demagogue talks when he wants to catch Irish votes."

The Standard regrets the speech, which, it says, it is impossible to pass as a mere indiscretion, just as the Panama bill is coming before the house, and fears that the Irish electioneering machinery will be brought to bear in favor of discriminatory tolls.

"If this is to receive the open support of the administration, the prospects of a just and favorable settlement would seem doubtful," adds the paper.

U. S. OPPOSES CHINESE LOAN

President Wilson Issues Statement Defining His Attitude

WASHINGTON, March 18.—President Wilson tonight, in a statement approved by his cabinet, after two hours of discussion, announced that his administration had declined to request the group of American bankers to continue their negotiations for participation in the $125,000,000 loan desired by the government of China.

The statement follows: "We are informed that, at the request of the last administration, a certain group of American bankers undertook to participate in the loan now desired by the government of China, approximately $125,000,000. Our government wished American bankers to participate along with the bankers of other nations, because it desired that the good will of the United States towards China should be exhibited in this practical way; that American capital should have access to that great country, and that the United States should be in a position to share with the other powers any political responsibility that might be associated with the development of the foreign relations of China in connection with her industrial and commercial enterprises."

The present administration has been asked by this group of bankers whether it would also request them to participate in the loan.

Disapproves Conditions of Loan. "The representatives of the bankers, through whom the administration was approached, declared that they would continue to seek its share of the loan under the proposed agreements only if, expressly requested to do so by the government, the administration had declined to make such request because it did not approve the conditions of the loan or the implications of responsibility on its own part which it was plainly told would be involved in this request."

"The representatives of the bankers, through whom the administration was approached, declared that they would continue to seek its share of the loan under the proposed agreements only if, expressly requested to do so by the government, the administration had declined to make such request because it did not approve the conditions of the loan or the implications of responsibility on its own part which it was plainly told would be involved in this request."

"The conditions of the loan seem to us to touch very nearly the administrative independence of China itself; and this administration does not feel that it ought, even by implication, to be a party to these conditions. The responsibility on its part which would be implied in requesting the bankers to undertake the loan, might conceivably go the length in some unhappy contingency of forcible interference in the financial, and even the political, affairs of that great oriental state, thus now awakening to a consciousness of its power and of its obligations to its people."

The conditions include not only the pledging of particular taxes, some of them antiquated and burdensome, to secure the loan, but also the administration of these taxes by foreign agents. The responsibility on the part of our government implied in the encouragement of a loan thus secured and administered is plain enough and is obnoxious to the principles upon which the government of our people rests."

GARRISON FAVORS A LARGER ARMY

FIGHTING FORCE IS NOW INADEQUATE, HE SAYS

Proposes Military Reserve and Short Term Enlistment for Men

WASHINGTON, March 18.—In an official statement of policy today, Secretary of War Garrison declared in favor of immediate preparation of the military forces of the United States to meet any emergency, holding a discussion of disarmament and international agreement, which might result in the consideration of what the United States government should do to meet existing conditions. The secretary proposed retention of the regular army at its present strength, improvement of the national guard and creation of a reserve.

Declaring that he was not urging militarism, Mr. Garrison said the leading line in the United States army does not advocate militarism, which means the existence of a large standing army, but precisely the reverse, a small, compact, but thoroughly efficient army.

"No one will pretend," he added, "that with a mobile force of less than 25,000 men (in the United States proper) we are prepared, in fact, if you don't alter the condition, we are not even prepared to prepare for war. We are called on to meet our civil war, we simply cannot do it. We literally send men out to acquire their education in armies under the fire of the enemy the emptiness of which is enough to cause one to shrink from permitting it."

Proposes Military Reserve. For relief, the secretary proposed a reserve of trained officers and men; improvement in the present national guard and provision for a volunteer soldiery, to be trained, while the regulars, the reserves and the national guard respond to the first danger call.

Regarding the reserve, the secretary suggested that this best could be created without bringing into existence a large professional soldiery, by enrolling the reserve in a two-year enlistment for two years, so as to train more men in short periods, and turn them back into civil life, immediately available in case of need.

"Many fine young fellows," he said, "would delight in a short, effective military training, if it did not unduly interfere with their starting in civil pursuits."

To insure a sufficient supply of officers, the secretary would make good use of the academy at West Point, turning into civil life the graduates who are not needed in time of peace.

Finally, he suggested an adequate scheme should be provided so that volunteers may be readily called, officered, equipped and trained when necessity arises, declaring that the first two years of our civil war revealed the frightful waste of life and treasure involved in sending untrained men into the field.

In conclusion, the secretary asserted that the execution of his plans would entail no additional cost and earnestly appealed to all citizens to aid in this situation, which bitterly cries for a remedy.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS SEED AND FEED FUND IS SHOWN

Farmers Put on Their Feet; 80 Per Cent Available for Repayment Now; 95 Per Cent Assured; New Loan Co. Boosted

RESULTS OF SEED AND FEED FUND. Total fund subscribed $ 8,000. Total fund on hand $ 6,250. Percentage to be returned on first repayment $ 80. Percentage to be returned on second repayment $ 10 to 15. Value of crops raised by farmers participating in seed and feed fund $100,000 to $125,000. Number of farmers assisted 175. Brought new business to Colorado Springs merchants and business houses. Made permanent residents of numerous families who otherwise would have been compelled to abandon homesteads. Gave encouragement to the men and women who are settling eastern El Paso county, western Lincoln and southern Elbert counties. Placed Colorado Springs and its farming sections into close commercial relationship.

Beginning of campaign for practical development of agricultural resources on scientific and approved basis. Plans for the Future. Organization of farm loan company with capital stock of $50,000 to loan money, on business basis, at reasonable rates of interest, to farmers who will follow approved lines of dairying, poultry raising and stock growing with scientific dry-farming methods. This company is already incorporated, and at last night's meeting about $20,000 of its capital stock was subscribed. Educational work already begun along practical lines by El Paso county, in cooperation with U. S. department of agriculture, through appointment of W. H. Lauck as county agriculturist. Establishment of automobile truck line, along new county road, to give farmers market in Colorado Springs for products they raise.

Money Well Expended. "Never was $8,000 expended in El Paso county which has brought the results that have come from the seed and feed fund of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce."

"This significant statement, made by Irving Howbert, banker, business man, pioneer and one who has played a prominent part in all movements for the upbuilding of the community during the last 40 years, voiced the sentiment of the meeting of subscribers to the seed and feed fund, held last night at the Chamber of Commerce to receive reports from the trustees of the fund and to outline plans for the further development of eastern El Paso and adjacent counties."

John Lennox, chairman of the trustees of the seed and feed fund, submitted a detailed report showing the financial operations, and showing that 80 per cent of the subscription made by each person is now ready to be repaid. He made the further statement that loans outstanding which are considered good will increase this to a total of from 80 to 95 per cent when the final disbursement is made. His report showed that the crops raised by farmers participating in the fund which otherwise would not have been grown, were valued at from $100,000 to $125,000, a large portion of which were marketed in Colorado Springs.

On behalf of the trustees, as well as the agricultural committee and board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Lennox then outlined plans for the farm loan company, recently incorporated, with the following president for directors: Irving Howbert, president; E. W. Giddings, vice president; John Lennox, secretary-treasurer; R. S. Kaufman, W. R. Armstrong, J. G. Dern, Leonard E. Curtis, B. A. Banta.

"If this is to receive the open support of the administration, the prospects of a just and favorable settlement would seem doubtful," adds the paper.

The Standard describes Secretary Bryan's speech as "a fine example of virulent and inflated nonsense which the inferior kind of demagogue talks when he wants to catch Irish votes."

The Standard regrets the speech, which, it says, is impossible to pass as a mere indiscretion, just as the Panama bill is coming before the house, and fears that the Irish electioneering machinery will be brought to bear in favor of discriminatory tolls.

SOUTH DAKOTA IN GRIP OF BLIZZARD

RAPID CITY, S. D., March 18.—The private car of Mrs. Oliver Harriman of New York, stalled here in the blizzard of Thursday, pulled out tonight. A gang of 75 men drove against a forty foot deep drift of snow in a cut a mile long day and night since last week, to clear the car which, besides Mrs. Harriman and her sister, Mrs. C. H. Hargens, of Hot Springs, contained the body of their mother, Mrs. Grace Carley, who died last Wednesday at Hot Springs.

It was at first proposed to send Mrs. Harriman through on a special train to Chicago but she objected to a caboose being attached for the gang who had cleared the track to return to Pierre.

Her car, therefore, was attached to the regular express over the Pierre division.

While Mrs. Harriman contributed liberally toward the funeral expenses of six members of the Perry family who perished in the blizzard last Thursday.

Indian Agent John R. Brennan, at Pine Ridge reservation, reports tonight that the loss of stock in the recent blizzard is appallingly beyond estimation at present.

The roads from the reservation are blocked and there has been no communication with the outside world since last Wednesday.

Thousands of head of cattle ranging from the reservation and the Bad Lands owned by the big cattle companies of Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska, are dead.

The full force of the blizzard struck the reservation Thursday night and continued until Saturday.

men. Among some of the statements were the following:

Leonard E. Curtis—"It was a pleasure to raise the seed and feed fund, because by so doing we were helping men to help themselves."

Irving Howbert—"We are building up a locality that will continue to grow. Every dollar we invest will return many fold to Colorado Springs."

E. S. Kaufman—"I was exceedingly surprised at the showing that has been made, and feel that we have begun a line of work that will build up a better Colorado Springs and surroundings. The trustees are entitled to a great deal of credit for the splendid showing they have made."

O. E. Hemenway—"A greater volume of trade is coming to Colorado Springs from the farmers than ever before, and it is the result of the work that has been done by the Chamber of Commerce through the seed fund and in

KILLS ENEMY, AND COMMITS SUICIDE

J. L. BURKE, Colo. Mar. 18.—The attack of Huntington W. V. today shot and killed S. G. Stevenson and then committed suicide.

The trouble between the two is said to have originated over Stevenson's admissions to Miss Bessie Hileman, to whom Atkins had become attached, that Atkins was not the proper person for her to marry. It is said that Stevenson told Miss Hileman that Atkins owed him considerable money, and when Atkins learned of it he sought Stevenson and began shooting. Upon Stevenson's death Atkins turned the revolver upon himself.

Stevenson was married.

Other ways to build up this country it is surprising to see the amount of product that is being every day from this section.

E. Seidenberg—"The new plan will appeal to the business men of a different ground than that of the seed and feed fund. Whatever subscription is made to the Farm Loan company will not be a contribution, but a business proposition, not charity, but an investment."

John Lenoix—"The Farm Loan company will be handled on a business basis, and will return to the stockholders a fair rate of interest on the investment. Our experience in the seed and feed fund warrants the assertion that loans properly made in eastern El Paso county are good investments."

A number of those present were so strongly impressed with the showing made in the administration of the seed and feed fund and with the importance of continuing the work of development already begun that they doubled their subscriptions. Before the meeting had adjourned approximately $2,000 in stock in the new company had been subscribed. Committees will be appointed to call on subscribers who were not present at last night's meeting.

Among those who have indicated their desire to take stock in the new company in lieu of the refund due on seed and feed funds are: Irving Howbert, E. W. Giddings, Kaufman and company, P. M. Green, Tetta company, P. D. Sommers, H. L. Stevens, Colorado Springs creamery, Hemenway Grocery company, J. J. Eubank for Russell Gates Mercantile company, Leonard E. Curtis, Joseph G. Dern, W. Donaldson, L. J. Newsome, Out West Text and Sewing company, R. B. Liles Grain company, Dr. W. A. Campbell, F. L. Rouse, Seldomridge Grain company, Joslyn Printery, Fred Daut, C. C. Hemmings and L. M. Hunt Grain company.

W. H. Lauck, the county agriculturist, outlined briefly the work which he is doing and showed the practical manner in which it is being approached and conducted. He stated that the great problem of eastern Colorado agriculture is that of finance, and that the farmers can and will raise dairy products, poultry and many marketable crops if they can receive the financial assistance so much needed at the present time.

One of the subjects presented in Mr. Lenoix's report, and given some attention, is that of establishing regular automobile truck service between Colorado Springs and this eastern section. This matter has been before the agricultural committee for some time, and has been investigated with a view to bringing about the establishment of such a line in the near future.

Police Searching for Hair Importer

NEW YORK, March 18.—Private detectives are scouring the country today in search of Antonio Musica and his son Philip who disappeared recently, charged with the discovery of alleged irregularities in connection with importations of human hair.

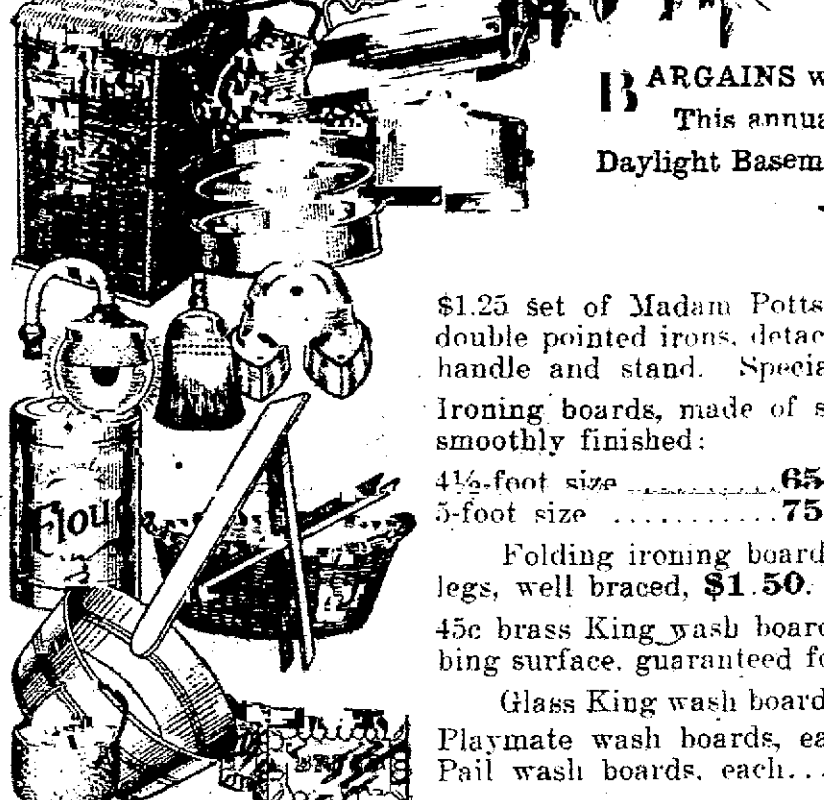

Behind the transactions, according to banks concerned, lurks a possible loss of $300,000. The American Bankers' association acting for the complainants, the Bank of Manhattan, the Anglo-South American bank and the Bank of Montreal is prosecuting the search. So far only one bank, the Anglo-South American has fixed the exact loss. To cover this attachment for $134,987 was issued last night against the firm of A. Musica and Son.

Antonio Musica, the father, is 70 years old. As a cheese importer he was charged with underweighing frauds some time ago but the son took all the blame and was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. Subsequently this was commuted by President Taft. Not only have the two male members of the family disappeared, but two daughters, Louise and Grace, are not to be found.

HYDRO CASE

company refrains from competition, carries the current itself to Colorado Springs, and pays at least $50,000 per year.

Competition Considered.
Competition, he said, between the Hydro company and the electric company was imminent at the time the contract was signed, and this enters largely into the consideration paid the Hydro company by the electric company.

But Mr. Holland went further, and asserted that the city had no right under the Jackson franchise to purchase 10,000 kilowatt hours of power. The franchise states that, in addition to paying a stated price for street lights, securing light for the city hall, and 50 kilowatt hours free for municipal purposes, the city may take other power, "for municipal purposes," at the same price paid by the lowest customer. Mr. Holland asserted that electric lighting is not a municipal purpose; the city must actually use this other power for running elevators in municipal buildings, and so on. It cannot buy the power and turn it into electricity, selling it in competition with the electric company, he said.

"Such a construction would question the sanity of those who signed the contract," he said. He held that a sharp distinction must be drawn between the governmental functions and the business functions of the municipality.

Resides, the franchise, as he construed it, requires the city to buy all the light it uses for street lighting from the Hydro company, and its successor, the electric company.

City Has No Franchise?
"Do you think the franchise leaves the city any option whatever?" asked the chief justice.

"No. If it ever did, the rights have now become vested on both sides," was the reply. He then quoted at length from the decision of the circuit court in the Golden Circle case as upholding his contention that the city must purchase all its street lights from the present company.

City Attorney McKesson asked how it would be possible for any court at any time in any case to arrive at any conclusion as to what a price should be if all the factors enumerated by Mr. Holland had to be taken into consideration. "We contend that price in this franchise, means the money actually paid for the service," he asserted.

Justice Scott asked the city attorney whether there was any distinction between the provisions in the franchise for the purchase of lights and the purchase of power by the city.

"Certainly," was the reply. "For a certain price, named in the franchise, the Hydro company agreed to transform power into lights, and furnish those lights. Then, for a certain other price—the lowest price charged the most favored customer—the company agrees to sell power to the city, to be by the city transformed into light, or used in any other manner, for municipal purposes."

Differ on Interpretation.
Mr. McKesson contended that the interpretation placed on the franchise by Mr. Holland could not have been in the mind either of the city or of the Hydro company, since it was opposed to the interests of each. The Hydro company had no electric plant, and no distributing system, and figured on meeting sharp competition with the electric company. On the other hand, the city also did not wish to enter into a hard and fast contract, since it also counted on the possibility of cheaper lights and power.

Resides, said Mr. McKesson, the company's interpretation is not legal. The council could not have entered into such a contract as the appellee interprets this to be without submitting the question to a vote, and this

Post-Impressionistic Gowns in New York; Pastel Shades in Boston

THE DISTANCE between New York and Boston small enough in the matter of miles, but very wide in matters of taste and inclination, is well illustrated in the advice those trained experts in feminine psychology, the fashion experts of the two cities are giving to the women who are working out that annual problem of spring clothes.

For instance, in Boston the color has gone forth, accompanied by a "Paris" that seems to denote authority, that the woman who would be well-groomed must choose her dress as she has been accustomed to choose it—that is, so it may accentuate whatever beauty or brilliancy of coloring she may have. It seems, according always to the fashion writers dating their letters from that magic city, that Paris prefers gowns of soft, rich subdued tones, on the theory that any other colors detract attention from the face of the woman herself, and thus are most inartistic. There is nothing revolutionary in that advice, since it has been offered to us every season since we can remember. But while fashion is saying this to the Boston woman, she has an entirely different message for her New York sister.

New York, it seems, which has had to suffer so much already from the "futurist" movement, or the "post-impressionistic" or "cubic" or whatever you choose to call the latest theory in art and music, must suffer still more, and take the new doctrine as it may be applied to clothes.

Paul Poiret is hailed as the man who seized the thing people were thinking about and wove it into designs for gowns and hats. Leading futurist artists were asked to design silks and chiffons according to the latest theories, and then expert fabricants made the designs into silks. And gowns made from these silks are exhibited in leading shops, with the advice that fashion says they must be worn.

Party for Miss Allen

Yesterday afternoon Miss Hester Frost was hostess at an auction bridge party for Miss Hazel Allen, bride-elect, and her intimate friends. After a most enjoyable time spent playing cards other guests came in, and the whole party adjourned to the dining room. Mrs. Bernice Hopkins served, assisted by Mrs. David Wasson, Mrs. J. R. Lowell and Miss Louise Nichols. Yellow daffodils in brass bowls and yellow candles in brass candelabra made the dining room most attractive. Among those present were Miss Allen, Mrs. Charles Holden, Mrs. David Wasson, Mrs. Alfred Ritter, Mrs. Lawton, Mrs. Bernice Hopkins, Mrs. Paul Lemmon, Mrs. Luther Lennox, Mrs. J. R. Lowell, Mrs. George Albrand, Mrs. Richard Aitken, Miss Alice Jones, Miss Ethel Rice, Miss Alice McKinnis, Miss Janet Kampf, Miss Bess Woodward, Miss Florence Lattner, Miss Frances Pickles, Miss Louise Nichols, Miss Jeanette Scholtz, Miss Addie Hemmick, Miss Harriet Shearer, Miss Mildred Koons, Miss Corvill, Miss Evelyn Lennox, Miss Alice Jacobs, Miss Dora Fehring, Miss Verita Slaughter, Miss Elizabeth Slaughter, Miss Ernestine Parsons, Miss Marquette Barnes, Miss Elaine Havens, Miss Hazlett Worthing, Miss Thyrza Roby.

Open Progress Club

The regular meeting of the Open Progress club was held Monday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. rooms in the DeGraff building, and an interesting program was given. The first talk of the afternoon was by Miss Flansburg, who spoke on "Cathedral Building." Her most interesting talk was illustrated by pictures of the most important cathedrals in France, Germany, Italy and England. Mrs. Robinson spoke of the "Birth of Switzerland." The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. B. E. Webster, Mrs. George S.

It is hard for anyone who has never seen a real cubist picture to know what the new school is about. Many reproductions of pictures that have come out this way show as utterly nothing at all. That famous "Nude Descending the Stairs" looks like nothing in the world, but a crazy quilt, as one man said. And another who saw it said plaintively that he would be satisfied if he could only distinguish the stairs. There are a few rules governing the new school's features is that it has no rules at all, but is an absolutely free expression of what the painter sees. If the painter sees a line, and most of them do not, but only masses of color, he is to paint those masses of color as they appear to him. There is no longer any "harmony of color," say the apostles. We have been too long in bondage to the idea that some colors harmonize with certain shades, while others do not. Now it is time to realize that if any color harmonizes with any other, if we are only free enough to realize it.

So the dressmaker does away with line as a fundamental in his work, and combines what colors he will some of the combinations are startling enough, as bright purple, orange and vivid scarlet combined in one hat; a wrap of brilliant Japanese red, with buttons and sash of old Chinese blue; a wrap of yellow that blurs like the sun, with a collar of a rich and clear purple. "A harmony of contrast," he calls the result.

The merchants who are offering these different ideas to the women of two cities must hope that they will be taken advantage of by their patrons. They may be, or they may not be. But if the Boston woman goes to Easter morning worship in a gown of pastel tints, chosen to blend with her own coloring and the New York woman wears the vivid raw colors of a post-impressionist gown, the two cities will seem farther away from each other in spirit than ever before.

Smith and Miss Maria W. Bassett. The next meeting of the club will be held Monday, March 27, with Miss Flansburg as hostess, and her subject for the evening will be "Maderlin." The meeting will be open to visitors upon payment of a guest fee of 25 cents.

TURPENTINE TRUST RAISES QUESTION VALIDITY OF LAW

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Many explanations were demanded today by members of the supreme court of the United States, when attorneys for the officers of the American Naval Stores company, the so-called "Turpentine trust," started to argue that the Sherman antitrust act was unconstitutional, at least as a criminal act. Samuel B. Adams of Savannah, Ga., representing the company, undertook to reply, but finally concluded this feature of his argument by referring the court to his printed brief.

The argument marked the final effort of the defendants to have set aside their conviction in the lower courts, of violation of the Sherman antitrust act. It was charged that they depressed the market for turpentine and resin to such an extent that producers were compelled to sell at ridiculously low prices.

Two of the naval store company's officers, Spencer P. Shetter, chairman of the board of directors, and J. F. Cooper Myers, vice president, are the first men sentenced to imprisonment for violation of the statute to come before the supreme court. An attorney for officers of the so-called "wash register trust," convicted recently, listened to the argument today.

Attorney Interrupted

Mr. Adams had hardly started to the court that the tribunal had never passed upon the constitutionality of the law as a penal act, when Chief Justice White suggested it had never "directly" passed upon the point, emphasizing the word "directly." The attorney then explained that his position was that the Sherman law, in prohibiting "unreasonable" restraint of trade, had provided no standard, or criterion, by which acts might be measured, and so was too indefinite to be good as a criminal law.

"As I remember it, within a year or so we decided a case in which we held that 'reasonable' was a sufficiently definite standard," declared Justice Holmes.

Mr. Adams suggested he had distinguished that case from the one he was arguing.

"Do you have the crime of manslaughter in Georgia?" asked Chief Justice White. "Define it."

Refers to New Orleans Case

Mr. Adams hesitated. The chief justice thereupon recalled an incident that happened in New Orleans in just after a period of military law, wherein a man shot another who was reaching for his snuff box in his hip pocket. "Now, the jury found that in that day it was reasonable to suppose when a man reached to his pistol pocket he meant to pull his pistol, and acquitted the accused on the ground of self-defense. The jury declared the act was reasonable. How do you distinguish that case from this?"

Mr. Adams suggested that the crime of murder was a matter of statute, and contented himself with referring to his brief and beginning an attack upon the form of the indictment.

Former Senator John C. Spooner, for the accused, and Assistant Attorney General Fowler, for the government, will address the court tomorrow.

Foods That Kind Little Children

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Diet

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Hence, avoid what seems to constipate the child or to give indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this it is meant a physician's prescription for these should never be given to children nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentler of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is the opinion of the majority of physicians and mothers, is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So many things can happen to a constipated child that are necessary evils, such as headaches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are without Syrup Pepsin. It is one that one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it, among them Mrs. M. E. Durling, R. F. D. No. 4, Holicong, Pa., writes: "I certainly think Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin saved my baby's life. Major is a bottle baby and could not get her food to digest, but I found by giving her a small dose of Syrup Pepsin when she had colic it always helped her. The Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value, and it contains proportionately more results are always guaranteed, or money will be refunded.

Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also a mild and non-stimulating laxative from its ingredients. If the mother of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do to Dr. W. R. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Why Did Sen. Barela Give Page, Son of Sen. Hecker, Tip of $20?

DENVER, March 18.—Senator Barela gave Adolph Hecker, a senate page, a $20 tip Saturday.

Adolph Hecker is the son of Senator John Hecker.

Senator Barela is from Las Animas county and Normal L. Wyoff began a contest for his seat in the senate. The majority report of the investigating committee was for unseating Senator Barela and seating Mr. Wyoff, and the minority report was for Senator Barela. The final vote on the contest will come up in the senate early next week. Senator Hecker will vote, but it is not known whether he will vote for or against Barela.

Young Hecker was passing around checks for wages to the senators Saturday. As a rule a quarter is handed to the page doing this work, and when the page is asked to go down into the treasurer's office and cash the check and he brings back the money, a half dollar, and then a dollar, is handed to him.

Senator Barela established a new figure for such tips when he handed Adolph Hecker $20. It was raising the limit above all precedents and there is now some question if $20 hereafter will be the established tip for such service by a page.

This is said to be the largest tip ever handed a page in either branch of the legislature during the nineteen sessions that have been held, and the various extra sessions are included. Young Hecker told his father, the senator, about it, but there is nothing to show that Senator Hecker "saw" the raise in tip schedule made by Senator Barela.

It is also maintained that Senator Barela never before passed $20 into the palm of the page passing around his salary checks, and he has been getting these checks in every session of the legislature since Colorado was a state, and in a couple of territorial legislatures.

The question being asked is: "What caused Senator Barela to have such a sudden enlargement of the heart so to raise the tip rate in the senate?"

Gets Parole After Serving 37 Years of Life Sentence

WAUPUN, Wis., March 18.—Edward Eckart of Pennsylvania was today paroled from the Wisconsin penitentiary after 37 years of actual time served behind the bars.

He was convicted of murder when 21 years old.

Eckart's victim was Charles Peterson, killed in Pennsylvania. The case was tried in Wisconsin during the excessive cold winter of 1875. In a quarrel over a fire started beside the railroad track near Jefferson, Peterson was killed and Eckart was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder. He never has admitted the crime, maintaining that Peterson was killed by a tramp. In the 37 years of prison confinement never a mark of desertion has been placed against Eckart. Warden Woodworth and other wardens before him favored the paroling of Eckart who cannot leave Wisconsin and his conduct must be exemplary.

In the third of a century of imprisonment, his life has deserted him and he does not know the whereabouts of his wife and daughter. Prior to his imprisonment Eckart saw much of the world, sailing the seas and working in the diamond fields of South Africa. The judge who sentenced him and the district attorney who prosecuted are dead and only three of the jurymen are living and only one has lost hope.

Without money he managed to bring his case before the supreme court of Wisconsin and the circuit court of appeals of the United States but he was thwarted. In a desperate last hope he appealed to a Milwaukee newspaper man, who was instrumental in obtaining his conditional release.

SOCIETY WOMEN TO RIDE MUSICAL CAVALRY DRILL

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Determined to show that as horsewomen they are the equal of the best riders who wear Uncle Sam's blue, six young society women have obtained permission to ride at Fort Myer in the "musical" cavalry drill to be given the latter part of this month for the benefit of the army post's Y. M. C. A. All are members of fashionable hunt or cross-country clubs. They are Miss Jane Allen, Miss Debra Allen, Miss St. G. Greble, Miss Emily Beatty, Miss Ruth Anderson, Miss Hinchcock, Mrs. R. C. Burleson and Miss Helen Buchanan.

Mrs. Burleson was the grand marshal of the recent suffrage parade. She is an excellent horsewoman and a woman service in aiding to clear the encroaching and hostile crowd by riding it down. Miss Janet Allen is regarded as the most fearless and daring horsewoman in the capital and she has had many narrow escapes from death in consequence. Her friends declare she is practicing a "stunt" for the drill that is daring in the extreme.

INDIANS WILL HOLD BIG CONGRESS IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Congress when it reconvenes will find a rival in the capital, for it developed today plans have been made to establish here an organization to be known as the Indian congress. The arrangements were approved at a meeting of several tribal Indians and their representatives last night.

The congress will have one resident delegate from each of the various Indian tribes of the country. Each delegate will receive a salary, the amount to be determined by the council of each tribe, to be paid out of the tribal funds. The primary object of the congress will be to look after the interests of the Indians before the government and congress.

The Indian newspaper, the "Tomahawk," now printed on the White Earth reservation in Minnesota, is also to be located here and it is expected publication of the paper in Washington will begin by the time the extra session of congress convenes.

WILL DEMOCRATS REVISE TARIFF?

How Senator Tillman Got Himself in a Hole Three Years Ago

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Democrats are going to revise the tariff. A call for the special session of congress to meet on April 7 was issued from the White House today. The Democrats are pledged by every sacred obligation which the solemn declaration of a national platform can make to frame their tariff for the sole purpose of raising revenue. They declare that protection is not only robbery, but also unconstitutional. This has been the declaration of the Democrats from a time to which the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

An interesting commentary upon the sincerity of this declaration is found in a brief colloquy that occurred in the special session of 1909, when the Tariff Republicans were framing up their colossal fraud upon the American people. The Hon. Benjamin Ryan Tillman, the distinguished Democrat from South Carolina, for many years a voracious performer on the tariff for revenue only moulters bench, had come with a proposition to levy a duty upon tea. Some hundred million pounds of tea is imported annually into this country free of duty, but in South Carolina, a gentleman had been experimenting in the effort to produce tea locally, and when Senator Tillman marched out to his support, he had succeeded to the extent of growing a crop of 12,000 pounds. For the protection of that 12,000 pounds, Mr. Tillman proposed the establishment of a duty which would have levied a tax of $9,000,000 upon the tea consumers of the country, a modest bagatelle of $750 a pound on the production of Mr. Tillman's South Carolina camellia.

Tillman Got No Support.

To Mr. Tillman's surprise and grief, his appeal fell upon incredulous ears on the other side of the senate chamber.

"We are asked," said one of his opponents, "to vote a duty of 50 per cent and in the cheaper grades of 75 or 80 per cent to protect 12,000 pounds of American tea."

Faithful to the tariff for revenue only pretense of innumerable Democratic platforms, the South Carolina patriot at once protested. "Not protection at all," he said. "Just getting $9,000,000 of revenue." And then, in the effort to bolster his case by precedent, he added: "We put a 125 per cent increase on pineapples only two or three days ago."

But this was a hot shot into the camp of another of these faithful adherents to the tariff for revenue only declaration. Up jumped Mr. Tallaferra of Florida, and, in accents of grief and anguish, exclaimed: "That is a very unfair statement. It was only 30 or 32 per cent."

Mr. Tillman was quick to reassure his pained colleague. "I am not complaining of the duty on pineapples," he said. "I am only talking about what we are proposing to do as to tea."

Confesses the Truth.

Somehow the statement on the Republican side of the chamber remained obdurate, and Mr. Tillman saw he

SUMMARY OF THE AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The report just issued by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the year ending December 31, 1912, shows that the telephone has become in the United States, to a greater extent than anywhere else in the world, a household necessity. There are now 70,000 towns, cities and hamlets from which telephone messages may be sent. This is 5,000 more than the number of postoffices in the United States; 10,000 more than the number of railroad stations and nearly three times the number of regular telegraph offices. There are altogether 7,456,074 telephone stations in the Bell System, which is an increase over last year of 823,449 stations. This compares with an increase during the previous year of 749,906 stations.

Including the traffic over the long-distance lines, but not including the connecting companies, the daily average of toll connections in 1912 was about 738,000, and of exchange connections about 25,572,000. This compares with 645,000 and 23,484,000 in 1911. Speaking broadly this means that the daily average of telephone conversations last year reached 26,310,000, or at the rate of about 8,472,000,000 for the year, as against 24,129,000 in 1911 when the rate was 7,770,000,000 a year.

Theodore N. Vail, president of the company, gives some highly interesting statistics comparing the telephone traffic in the United States and Europe with the operations of the mail and telegraph services. Taking the last available figures: those for the year 1911 the records may be thus summarized:

Type of Message.	Europe.		United States.
	Number During 1911.	Per Cent of Total.	Number During 1911.	Per Cent of Total.
First Class Mail Matter	16,500,000,000	72.2%	9,700,000,000	40.1%
Telegrams	370,000,000	1.6%	108,000,000	0.4%
Telephone Conversations	6,000,000,000	26.2%	14,400,000,000	59.5%
Total	22,870,000,000	100.0%	24,208,000,000	100.0%

These figures show that while Europe has three and a half times the telegraph traffic of the United States and nearly twice the first class mail traffic, it has only two-fifths of the telephone traffic, owing to the greater efficiency and distribution of the telephone in this country.

The Bell System showed a gross revenue not including that of the connected independent lines of $199,200,000. This was a gain of $20,000,000 over the previous year. A very careful appraisal conducted by the engineers of the physical property of the Bell System as of August 1st, last, showed that while the book cost was $736,000,000, the cost of reproduction at that date would have been $797,000,000. In other words, the company was carrying the property on its books at $61,000,000 below its actual physical value at the time of its appraisal. In this appraisal there were included no intangible assets whatever, such as good will, patents, franchises, cost of developing the business, etc. For the year there was an increase in assets of $92,300,000, of which $75,600,000 represented current additions to the plant, including the necessary real estate. During the five-year period between 1907 and 1912 the assets of the Bell Companies have increased $311,000,000 while the capital obligations and payables outstanding have increased only a little over $199,000,000. The surplus and reserves have increased from $61,300,000 to $164,200,000 or nearly $103,000,000, even after setting aside $8,845,000 for the Benefit Fund recently created for the employees.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company itself shows total earnings of $42,717,992.75, and a balance of $6,047,357.64 after payment of interest and the regular dividends of 8 per cent per annum. At the close of the year its outstanding capital stock was $334,803,700, and bonds $103,002,000. For the capital stock outstanding there has been paid into the company's treasury $356,732,218, or nearly $22,000,000 more than the par value of the stock.

Scarcely any corporation in the United States has its capital stock more widely distributed than the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. A majority of the shares are held by women and less than 7 per cent is held in the name of brokerage houses. The average number of shares held by each stockholder at the close of 1912 was shown to be 66.

could not succeed with them on the plea of a tariff for revenue only." So for a moment he boldly confessed the truth.

"I have demonstrated," he said, "beyond all possibility of reasonable dispute, that this is a protection duty which will develop the tea industry of the south."

Frankness like that, however, was as unpalatable to the tariff for revenue only patriots of the south as had been his tariff for revenue only protestation to the standpat Republican patriots of the north, and so Mr. Tillman finally came to an exact confession of the whole truth.

"I say protection on the other side," he explained, "but I want $9,000,000 for revenue on this side."

Thus is illustrated the complete fidelity of Democratic statesmen to the great constitutional doctrine of "tariff for revenue only."

BRYAN'S PRESENCE FAILS TO BREAK ILL DEADLOCK

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 18.—The eleventh joint ballot on the long term United States senatorship resulted in no choice, despite Secretary Bryan's presence. The leaders were L. Sherman, Republican, with 74; J. Lewis, Democratic, with 58, and Frank Funk, Progressive, 20.

The number of shareholders on the books of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at the close of the last year was 50,297, which indicates an increase for the year of 2,957. The following extremely interesting table shows just how the stock of the company is distributed and the number of shares held by both large and small holders:

43,553 held less than 100 shares each;
6,354 held from 100 to 1,000 shares each;
356 held from 1,000 to 5,000 shares each;
19 held 5,000 shares or more each (omitting brokers and holders in investment trusts, etc.)

Of the holders of less than 100 shares each, 9,450 held shares or less each; 34,953 held 25 shares or less each.

The report tells of the new plan announced January 1st, last for Employees' Pensions, Disability Benefits and Insurance adopted by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company by its associated companies, by the Western Union Telegraph Company and by the Western Electric Company. For the purpose of inaugurating these benefits the American Telephone and Telegraph Company made an initial appropriation of $2,000,000. There are about 200,000 employees men and women in the service of the companies concerned who will be directly or indirectly affected by this provision. The plan has been elaborately worked out and will, it is believed, result in the increased happiness and betterment of employees.

The company has worked hard to secure the long-planned ocean to ocean service. On this point President Vail says:

"Experience with the engineering devices and methods employed in the New York-Denver Line having demonstrated the value under severe practical conditions, a systematic introduction of these improvements was undertaken and actively prosecuted throughout the United States, so that at the end of 1912 there was a total of 54,250 miles of the heaviest-gauge wire equipped with the new arrangement, thus doubling their transmission efficiency, and in addition to this there were obtained without any expenditure for new wires, phantom circuits equivalent to 12,600 miles of the heaviest gauge circuit. These improvements have brought into communication with each other places formerly too remote, and between a great number of places less remote, noteworthy improvements in the service have been reported.

"Engineering plans have been completed for the extension of four heavy copper wires from Denver to San Francisco and construction work is to commence as soon as the weather permits."

In thirty-three different states there are public service or other state commissions which supervise the telephone service. This supervision is entirely distinct from the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The report contains the interesting letter addressed by Attorney-General Wickersham to the Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington touching the activities of the company and also the order made by the Interstate Commerce Commission as of January 13th, last, directing that a thorough investigation be made "concerning the history, the financial operations, the rates, rules, regulations and practices of telephone and telegraph companies subject to the Act to Regulate Commerce, with a view to the making of a comprehensive report and to the issuance of such order, or orders, as may be necessary to correct such discriminations and make applicable reasonable rates and practices." The policy of the company, as in the past, will be to co-operate with the examiners conducting this investigation, and to aid public officials in every possible way in their effort to ascertain the facts respecting the telephone service of the United States.

President Vail says in conclusion:

"As to the future of the company, it was never brighter. Business indications are normal, our relations with the public and with the public authorities on a mutually satisfactory basis.

"The organization on the lines set forth in previous reports is about complete, and the division of the work is so clearly drawn and so closely correlated between the local administration of the associated companies and the central general administration of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company that there is no duplication of effort or conflict in administration.

THE DAY'S HAPPENINGS IN SPORT CIRCLES

Edited for THE GAZETTE by E. E. Overholt

ONLY TWO TEAMS TO STAND PAT WITH OLD LINEUP THIS SPRING

WASHINGTON, March 18.—In both the big leagues there are just two ball teams which are ready to stand pat in 1913 with the lineups with which they finished the 1912 season, and curiously enough, while one of those teams is the Red Sox, the other is the Philadelphia team of the National league. It would naturally be supposed that the Giants would be the National league standpaters, having won the National league bunting, but McGraw is after a shortstop, Fletcher not quite filling the bill, and Shafer having decided not to play ball this season.

The greatest number of real vacancies in any team is four, and three teams are tied with this number of holes in their makeup. Curiously enough, the Braves are not in the trio, either, Stallings having only three distinct gaps in his lineup.

Beginning with the Braves, Stallings needs a center fielder to replace Campbell, who insists that he will not play again; a first baseman to fill that long-felt want in the Brave outfit, and a third baseman. Stallings has Bues for third base, but Bues is an untitled major leaguer as yet. Of course, Maranville, at short, may fall as a hitter, but he showed enough promise last fall to be mentioned as a regular. A team is considered ready for battle with the other clubs if three capable pitchers are in line, and the Braves have Perdue, Hess and Tyler to rely upon.

Bill Dahlen wants a shortstop to fill Bert Tooley's place, would like a little more seasoned third baseman than young Smith and needs a center fielder. Moran and Wheat being able to hold down the other two positions. Dahlen also needs another pitcher to swell his total of reliable moundmen to three, Rucker and Knetzer being the only real dependables up to date.

Miller Huggins of the Cardinals is prepared to take his chances if he can land a left fielder to replace Rube Ellis, and one pitcher. Larry McLean's signing fills the catching hole.

Joe Thicker would feel a little happier in Cincy if he was sure that right field and third base were taken care of. Marsans is a good outfielder, but he is a valuable utility man for the in and out fields and is raised as general utility man. Joe wants a catcher and one more good pitcher, too, to help out Suggs and Benton.

Red Doon of the Phillies stands pat with a very well balanced team. Injuries, keeping one on another, kept this team out of the race last season.

Fred Clarke, the Pirate leader, is hoping for a little better second-sacker than Butler, the ex-Brave recruit. Butler will probably be found at second base when the season opens, however.

Johnny Evers of the Cubs is worrying about center field and shortstop. Leach is having trouble with his legs, to say nothing of his advancing age. Al Bridwell and Corridon are down as short field aspirants for Tinker's old place, but no one knows whether either will deliver the goods or not.

Muggsy McGraw needs a shortstop to fill Fletcher's place. Fletcher's woes spelled defeat for the Giants in the world's series.

In the American league, Jake Stahl doesn't need worry at all. He may scout around a bit for a first baseman to make his own task a little lighter if his leg troubles him, but with world's champions playing the game and Hendrickson and Engle to fill in the in and out fields Jake is not worrying this winter.

Frank Chance will need a left fielder, a second baseman, a short fielder and a third baseman before he can feel that he has a real good team working for him. Walter's return to the outfield in good shape is not certain, and even if Harry does get back Daniels is likely to have one of his in and out seasons.

Hughes Jennings would like to pick up a left fielder to fill Davy Jones' place and a second sacker. Louden and Vitt are good infielders, but Hugh doesn't regard either as competent to hold down second regularly.

Stovall at St. Louis wants two outfielders to fit in on either side of Shotton, one of the best in the league, a catcher and one more good pitcher. In Hamilton and Baumgartner Stovall has two good men, but Powell, the wonderful veteran, is liable to slow up.

Countie Mack will take one good outfielder. Outside of this Connie feels independent enough. Callahan of the White Sox, who has been hunting for a first sacker this long while, is still hunting for the right man.

Joe Birmingham at Cleveland will thank somebody for a first baseman and a catcher, and Clark Griffith wants a second baseman to supplant Frank LaPorte and Morgan, and a left fielder who is a little more dependable than Shanks.

Three Local Ball Teams Getting Into Shape for Strenuous Season

Tigers Play Practice Games Next Week; Mines Ralk

Tiger baseball candidates expect to put in spring vacation, which starts tomorrow night and closes April 1, getting down to real hard training and Coach Rothgeb has arranged to open the local season with two games with Harpers All-Stars from Denver on Friday and Saturday, March 28 and 29. Practice games between the Tigers and Cutler will be staged for other vacation dates and when college work resumes it is expected that the team will be largely picked.

The diamond at Washburn field has been laid out and the ground is about in shape for the season's play. Coach Rothgeb had his players hard at work last night and things are beginning to assume a more definite shape. Rothgeb is paying particular attention to batting and his cuts are being given a chance to show what they have in this line.

A little difficulty with the Mines over the games to be played this spring has arisen, because the Ore Diggers claim that they have no field for games. They want their expenses guaranteed at Tigerville with no promise of return. Coach Rothgeb is trying to arrange a game here and has offered the Mines the net gate receipts. Owing to the uncertainty of the weather the C. C. managers do not want to guarantee expenses. The game with the Mines is scheduled for April 5. The other dates are: April 7—University of Hawaii here. April 12—Aggies at Fort Collins. April 19—Mines at Golden. April 26—C. C. at Boulder. May 2—Utah here. May 10—Aggies here. May 23—D. U. at Denver. May 30—C. C. here.

(Contracts have not been signed for the Mines games.)

Fowler Returns to Play With Terrors; Will Use Washburn

High school baseball stars took a big advance yesterday when it was announced that "Blondie" Fowler, star third baseman and the hardest hit school hitter in the state had reentered school and would be with the team this year. Fowler is also something of a pitcher and in case Forest Deal falls down, the sorcerer-trapped lad will go on the mound. Fowler will be a big asset to the team and will be out in Brown and White tonight.

The Terrors will use Washburn field from now on for their baseball practice. They will get to work early in the afternoon and will be through by the time the Tigers are ready for their afternoon practice. Principal Hill, who is coaching the team will probably pit his youngsters against the Tigers on several afternoons in practice games.

Forest Deal, who has been giving his arm a little limbering this week, is already in the pink for the season. The team lineup so far has developed into the following: Coach, F. Deal; catcher, H. Spencer; C. Jones; ss, Greenman; B. Patterson, outfield; Burgess, outfield; Greck, 2b; Fisher, infield; Bond, outfield; Shaw, infield.

No definite arrangements have been made for practice games.

Cutler Will Be Coached by W. W. Gail; to Start Practice

In an effort to make their former baseball supremacy, Cutler baseballists are hard at work making the team that will wear the Red this spring, and have secured W. W. Gail, Zozo manager and fielder to coach them for the season. Gail will call his players out the last of this week for steady work and the team members have already cleared off their baseball kit on the lower end of Washburn field.

Gail has a fairly good nucleus to form his team. Captain Dickinson is in good condition for box work and Heiden, last year's catcher, will be out for the job. Other candidates are Lieberhardt, H. Jackson, 2b; Barnes, 3b; Tucker, 2b; Spencer, c; Jones, ss; Greenman, B. Patterson, outfield; Burgess, outfield; Greck, 2b; Fisher, infield; Bond, outfield; Shaw, infield.

Bowers to Manage H. S. Day and Plans Made for Big Show

The first definite plans for Colorado college's 1913 High School day have been made and Glen A. Bowers, who managed the big meet last spring, will have charge of the interscholastics on

GLEN BOWERS.

Glen Bowers, popular college student, who will again take charge of the interscholastic meet, held at Colorado college on May 4. Plans are being made for a record-breaking affair.

May 3 at Washburn field. Athletic Director Claude J. Rothgeb will direct the meet in his usual snappy manner and the other committees will be chosen in a few days. Cops will be given as they have for the last two years and the entertainment features will be improved.

For the last two years more than 200 high school athletes have competed on Washburn field. Last spring the Denver schools were not allowed to compete and it is believed that the Denver school board may be persuaded to allow the four schools to enter teams here.

More definite plans for the meet will be announced after spring vacation.

Autos Pass Through City on Test Trip From Coast to Coast

Two 1914 model Packard automobiles silently chugged into Colorado Springs Monday night, in charge of five expert automobile makers, whose names were kept secret, en route to California on the coast-to-coast test trip of the cars. New motor appliances, springs and a number of features with which the Packard company is experimenting were used in the big cars, and two of the men with the party watched the machines to prevent any people from seeing the inner workings. The party left early yesterday morning for Pueblo, thence to Los Angeles. They came from New York.

A special wire wheel of English make is one of the features that the company is testing and the makers chose the coast-to-coast test as a fit one for the new appliance. The machines are not stopping in any town in the day time, in order to prevent inspection, fearing some of the secrets of manufacture that have not been patented, pending thorough test, may be stolen.

WANTED—NEW POTATO, OR BEETTER PEELER U. S. NAVY

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Unless some of the wizards who are improving upon nature can turn out a spherical potato peeling machine, the navy must find a better potato peeling machine, in use. Today the department sent out an appeal to inventors to submit a device that will economically pare potatoes of irregular form. The official statement declares that "it seems that the present machines do a most effective and acceptable job on a perfectly round potato, but when the potato arrives, long and slender, or sawed-off, or hampered down, the trouble begins."

RITCHIE WOULD TOUR EUROPE FOR COIN AND FORSAKE U.S. FIGHTERS

By HARRY B. SMITH.

W. L. Ritchie, a professional boxer, is confident of the process of his career. A trip to Europe doubtless appeals to him.

There is another side to be considered. California may possibly pass a law that will eliminate twenty-four hours. If that is the case, there will be little else than ten-round fights throughout the country, and Ritchie, returning still the champion, will have to fight along for many months without decisions, it would take a knockout to dispense him.

Which may easily be the kernel in the nut. The San Francisco chap is a far-sighted lad, and it wouldn't be much bother for him to figure ahead. But that is no proper excuse. A fighter, and particularly a champion, should be able to do too much of that sort of commercial reasoning. He must be just such a fighter as was Stanley Ketchel, if he wants to win approval and respect. The money side is well and good, but that doesn't count for everything.

Let Ritchie wind up his theatrical engagements in this country and be prepared to take the best offer in sight for a twenty-round match on the Fourth. Then, if he wins, it will be high time to talk of London and the continent.

Chalmers

The Inviting Chalmers "Thirty-Six"

Inviting because it simply appears good and right. Some houses are that way the ones you know are right, without knowing just why.

The wide door invites you to step in, the deep cushions to sit down, the big steering wheel to drive.

Just keep your seat don't get out in the street again. The control of this car is centered on the cowed dash.

Push a button and the Chalmers cranks itself. Chalmers air pressure starter does it, best starter made because simplest, most economical, quickest acting, most reliable under all conditions.

Chalmers was the first car to have a dependable starter. Chalmers "Thirty-Six" gave a name to the year 1912. That year goes down in automobile history as "Self-Starter year." Chalmers cars set fashions.

Just move a lever and the carburetor is adjusted.

This lever is the key to all you can ask in a motor car.

Turn a switch and the electric lights are on.

The levers and pedals and wheel are just where you want them. In fact, all the "controls" of the Chalmers are right to your hand, most of them artistically grouped on the stylishly cowed dash.

And, by the way, that's another big automobile improvement, the Chalmers had first the cowed dash. Compare this one feature with the same on other cars and if the Chalmers isn't better done.

Rims are demountable. Tires may be inflated from the compressed air tank—no pumping. Others ask you to pay extra for this feature.

In view of all these good points, a Chalmers "Thirty-Six" is particularly inviting because of its price, only $1950 (f. o. b. Detroit) for a fully equipped up-to-the-minute motor car of A-1 goodness. Always on view at our showrooms.

AN INVESTIGATION NEEDED

DURING the last ten days The Gazette has printed a pretty thorough exposure of Governor Ammons' relations with the state insurance department, and his efforts to secure the passage of an insurance law intended to favor a company of which he is president. We have also shown that Insurance Commissioner Clayton is a borrower to the extent of about $46,000 from the various Colorado insurance companies which would be benefited by this bill.

These are only a few of the most important revelations made concerning what appears to be a thoroughly rotten condition in the insurance department. Under the law the Commissioner is forbidden to maintain such relations with the companies over which he exercises supervision, but Mr. Clayton got around this by having the loans made to corporations of which he is alleged to own 98 per cent of the stock. Naturally these state insurance companies want him to retain his job so that he may prosper and pay back the money, and they are even willing for him to receive an increased salary. The Philp bill, as originally drawn, increased the pay of the Commissioner from $3,000 to $5,000 a year, but as amended by the House Committee of the Whole it is fixed at $4,000. Also, the bill exempts these companies, organized in Colorado, from payment of the 2 per cent income tax, which would mean a loss of revenue for the state of about $9,000 a year.

Here is a situation which cries loudly for thorough investigation. Ammons, in his dual role of Governor and insurance president, is hand in glove with Clayton, who is both Insurance Commissioner and an extensive borrower of insurance funds. And there are other ramifications. Lieutenant Governor Fitzgerald is first vice president of the Aegis Life Insurance Company of Denver, just as Governor Ammons is president of the Farmers' Life Insurance Company. All three officials are working actively for the passage of the Philp bill, because it will put money in their pockets.

These facts are sufficient evidence of improper conduct on the part of the officials named and of improper relations between the state administration and private corporations. No further justification is needed for a demand for a thorough legislative investigation of the entire situation. There is every reason for believing that if such an investigation were made it would reveal startling facts. For the legislature to refuse at this time to institute an investigation would be a confession of its desire to protect the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Insurance Commissioner. Already the affair has assumed the dimensions of a full-fledged political scandal, and for the sake of decency in politics and government it must not be hushed up.

By all means let us have an immediate and thorough investigation of the conduct of the Insurance Commissioner's office and its relations to pending legislation and to state officials.

THOSE WHO KEPT THEIR PLEDGES

ON Monday in the house of Representatives the crucial moment of the Nineteenth general assembly was reached. The senate had passed an excellent public utilities bill. The various utility corporations, frightened lest they might at last be compelled to deal fairly with the people, rallied all their strength to defeat the bill in the house.

It was the railroads of Colorado, which, through exorbitant rates, have robbed this state to build up the Pacific coast, that led this fight against the effort of the people to put an end to watered stocks, stock jobbing, and similar evils. Every member elected to the Colorado house had been specifically pledged to give the people a utilities bill, with regulation of stock and bond issues. But the blandishments of the corporations led almost half those members to vote to break their solemn pledges.

It is worth while turning the spotlight for a moment upon this decisive vote of

Monday afternoon, to see who were true and who were false to their pledges:

DEMOCRATS.

The Pledge.

We favor a public utilities court or commission, with full power to fix just rates and to make regulations for the control of ALL public utilities of this state, with express provisions regulating and controlling stock and bond issues.

REPUBLICANS

The Pledge.

We pledge the enactment of a law creating a public utilities commission, which shall possess the power to supervise and regulate the issuance of stocks and bonds.

These 4 Voted to Break Their Pledge:

Biele of Las Animas
Hasty of Prowers

PROGRESSIVES.

The Pledge.

We declare ourselves in favor of a stringent and complete public utilities law, subjecting ALL public service corporations to immediate state supervision, also regulating all issues of stocks and bonds.

These 7 Voted to Keep Their Pledge:

Cunningham of Larimer
Hawkins of Delta
Mann of Garfield
Newton of Mesa

These 4 Voted to Break Their Pledge:

Carrig of Lake
Howells of Fremont

(These Progressives were candidates also on the Republican ticket, and so were bound by double pledges.)

Absent: Ashton of Pueblo and Bennett of Douglas, Democrats; Thomas of El Paso, Progressive; Valdez of Huerfano, Republican.

The only way Colorado can get good government is by sending to Denver men to whom a promise is a promise. It would be well to preserve this list, against the time when a new legislature is to be chosen. It will aid in determining who should and who should not be reelected.

THE TELLER CO. JUDICIAL BILL

IT WOULD be hard even for the active proponents of the bill now before the Legislature to remove Teller County from this judicial district to advance a good reason for their attitude. Most of the important litigation arising in Teller County is an outgrowth of the mining industry, and since the mines are to a great extent owned and managed in Colorado Springs it is desirable that the two counties be in the same judicial district. But Senator Van Tilborg of Cripple Creek, the author of this measure, has political reasons for wanting Teller County transferred from the Fourth District to the Eleventh District, which includes Chaffee, Fremont, Custer and Park counties.

The bill passed the Senate Monday by a vote of 18 to 17, and appears likely to pass the House also. Since it is purely a political measure, and without any beneficial purpose, this result if it comes to pass, will be generally regretted in both counties by all except Senator Van Tilborg and a few other politicians.

FROM OTHER PTNS.

WAGES AND MORALITY.

Since so much is being said by investigators about low wages being responsible for a large part of the immorality of young women, it is interesting to note that certain well-known business men in Chicago have entered an emphatic denial of this accepted opinion. To be sure, most of these witnesses are large employers of women and admit frankly that they do not pay high wages, but they are men of wide experience and ought to know what they are talking about. The really surprising thing about the whole investigation is that it is thought to be needed at all. Common observation by intelligent men and women leads them to the inevitable conclusion that low wages undoubtedly do exert a powerful influence in this matter.

According to some of the big Chicago employers, "character and environment" have more to do with shaping the lives of working women than the question of wages. But many working girls, like many other people, do not possess strong characters, and as to environment, everybody knows that low wages do not allow great latitude in the choice of where and how a girl may live. Of necessity a girl with a slim purse must seek the cheapest quarters, and in such quarters there is always more or less danger. If all the girls who are obliged to work for low wages were carefully brought up and properly trained for contact with the world the problem of wages and morality might be different. But, unfortunately this training is sadly lacking in countless instances. It is rather odd that in all this discussion so little attention has been paid to the opportunities for domestic service. Here is a little extract from the report of the Chicago hearing that is inconspicuous in the mass of testimony:

"If a girl cannot live on her income, don't you think that, with the pitfalls which surround a young woman, an immoral life offers the easiest way out?" Mandel was asked.

"Not if she is the right kind of a girl. If she is starving, and immorality is repugnant to her, as it should be, she can go into domestic service."

"What?" exclaimed Senator Jaul, do you think there are enough places for domestics to take care of all the unemployed girls and women working in stores and factories?"

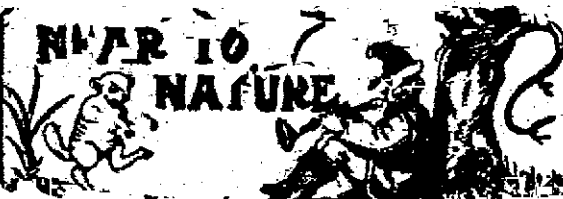

"House servants are mighty scarce," smiled the witness, and as both Jaul and Mandel had raised their voices, the spectators heard it and tittered. It was one of the few things they did hear.

Now why should a girl need to be on the point of "starving" before she consents to seek domestic service? What is there about going into homes for wages that discredits that service as an alternative to a life of shame? It may be answered that the average working girl is not a competent cook and therefore is ineligible for domestic service, and perhaps that is true. But here is a field of usefulness for reformers. If society would endeavor to educate working girls to become good household employees, and encourage them to find homes and employment in families many would be glad to avail themselves of this better way of living and earning. And if home employment once became popularized it might relieve the congestion in stores and factories, thereby enabling working women generally to earn better pay.

HOW COULD HE REFUSE?

From the Pittsburgh Dispatch.
President Wilson's declaration of honorary membership in a Washington country club has since been explained as due to his desire to pay his way. He is reported to have paid $40 for the two boxes he and his family occupied at the theater the other night. He has intimated that he will not use the so-called president's yacht except on official journeys and in other ways has set his face sternly against enjoying any favors or perquisites that custom has granted to the occupants of his high office. But even Achilles had his vulnerable heel.

Ban Johnson, head of the American league, presumably unaware of Mr. Wilson's aversion to gratuitous hospitality, mailed a season baseball pass to the Washington grandstand to the president as customary. Now, as any American will at once recognize, this was something different. Who ever heard of a real American refusing an annual baseball pass? It put Mr. Wilson in a puzzling position. If he declined would he not by example and inference imply that those thrice fortunate fellow citizens who have had a similar opportunity to get in without paying, and gladly accepted it, were not up to his ethical standard? What could a baseball-loving nation think of a man who could so regularly resist the national temptation? But he does not appear to have hesitated long, if at all. He put the precious card away safely where it would be available on opening day, and thereby proved to the satisfaction of his countrymen that he has good, red blood in his veins.

IN WHICH THE PARAPETS OF GLORY ARE STORMED TO A FARE-YOU-WELL.

From the Anstuitie and Observer.
With victory written on its banner the incomparable Handel society, seventy strong, under the flaming scepter of Miss Ida Belle Freeman, again invaded the sainted realm of harmony and paluted their royal emblem on parapets of glory hitherto unattained in music loving Austin. The imperishable masterpiece of Handel, "The Messiah," charmed and fascinated the most magnificent gathering that perhaps ever assembled in the sacred edifice of the First Baptist church.

HOME MADE.

From the Dodgeville, Wis., Chronicle.
The bride was attired in a tan silk panier gown, draped with silk marquisette and trimmed with macramay lace. It was strictly a family affair.

Expressing Oneself

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I read of a decorator who was extremely proud of a certain room which he had created. He had chosen and arranged the furniture and hangings, and even the woodwork of the floor and walls he had brought from Europe especially for that room. He considered the effect absolutely perfect, and when he heard that the woman who owned the house had bought some more furniture on her own hook and put it into the room, he was almost frantic.

You see, he considered that that room was his work. He felt that he had created it just as an artist creates a picture, or an author a book, and although he could not actually sign it as an artist or an author, signs his work, he felt that it was signed by the fact that many people knew it was his work. Therefore he resented having it changed and spoiled, even by the legal owner of the house. And at the risk of antagonizing a valuable customer, he actually went to her and begged her to restore it.

I was deeply impressed by that little incident. For this reason: I wish more women felt toward their homes as that man felt toward his work, for they certainly have reason to. A woman's home is her expression of herself. Her name is signed to it just as clearly as if she had painted a picture and written her initials in the corner of it. A very clever young art student who was making a success of her profession gave up her art to marry. At first she planned to do some work after marriage, but before long her hands were too full of nursing bottles and thermometers to leave room for a palette. We were discussing her forsaken profession the other day, and this is what she had to say: "I mean to take it up again some day when my children are older and do not need me so much. Just now I am trying to express myself in making an attractive home and bringing up my children properly."

And that is just what she is doing. Without a great deal of money to work with, she is gradually transforming a commonplace house into a wonderfully attractive and artistic home. "Everyone who enters it says at once that it looks like her. Without a great deal of time, she is nevertheless managing to give her children an exceptionally fine bringing up. She is painting a picture which she must be very proud to have signed with her name."

The physical aspect of her home, the atmosphere within it, her children's clothes, their health, their manners, their ideals, her husband's happiness—in work, she had best make sure that the work is as good as it is in her to do.

And since her name is indelibly signed to her all these things, and others innumerable, a married woman can express herself.

Modern Inventions SAFETY RAZORS

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

A safety razor is a sort of society for the prevention of cruelty to faces. That we are living in a vital and tremendous age is proven once more by the fact that a safety razor was perfected only a few years ago after mankind had suffered without it for 6,000 years.

The old style razor which flourished during most of these years was a sharp blade with a flappy handle. It covered a wide area of face at one swoop and removed whiskers, lips, noses and other projections with equal ease. It could be sharpened by a genius by slapping it on a smooth, flat piece of leather. When dull it acted upon the beard like a pair of tweezers. From 6 to 8 o'clock in the morning in the bloody past, the world rang and echoed with shrieks of woe as men, who were not geniuses and couldn't sharpen their razors, removed the outlying portions of their faces without anaesthetics. In those days villains who wished to disguise themselves didn't buy beards. They shaved themselves with a strange razor.

"People wonder nowadays why the young men of the sixties wrapped themselves in such billows of whiskers."

People wonder nowadays why the young men of the sixties wrapped themselves up in such billows of whiskers. They would not wonder, however, if they had ever tried to restrain said whiskers with an old-fashioned face hoe.

The safety razor is so simple that it makes the past centuries look like fables. It is a small razor with a guard on it, thus preventing the nervous or erratic shaver from digging down into his jaw on a hard corner and nicking the blade on a wisdom tooth. These blades can be replaced when dull, and can either be sharpened or fed to the cat. In fact, the up-to-date test of economy is the razor blade. The man who saves his razor blades and lugs them down town to be sharpened will never money in his old age for the money he has wasted.

Thanks to the safety razor, the wearing of whiskers to excess has almost ceased and a trip to Europe has been robbed of half its terrors. All that is now needed to complete the protection of mankind, is a law compelling the carrying of safety razors in colored society.

LONGFELLOW'S GRANDSON IS STREET CAR CONDUCTOR

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of the poet, Longfellow, master of arts and bachelor of arts, from Harvard, is working as a conductor on the Mid-dlesex & Boston Street Railway company at 21 cents an hour and living in a $150 a week room.

The former Harvard athlete, whose "whisker" marriage last June to Jessie Holliday aroused much discussion, because the bride wrote the ritual, dedicates the reports of an estrangement. Conductor Dana's father, Richard H. Dana, is one of the wealthiest citizens of Cambridge.

THE HASKIN LETTER THE CAPITAL OF CAPITALS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The Sixty-third congress was distinguished for the steps it took to add to the beauty of Washington, already the most beautiful of the world's capitals. It made an appropriation for the connection of Rock Creek park, a large wildwood driving park, with Potomac park, which lies along the western end of the city's river front. This will give a continuous parkway, extending from the Capitol, past the Washington monument, to Rock creek, which separates the city proper from old Georgetown. The lower end of this creek runs through a region, once famous for its beauty, but now desolate in its sordid ugliness, being used as a dumping ground. The upper end, which is included in the National Zoological park, has had its natural beauty conserved. With the completion of the beautification of lower Rock creek it will then be possible for one to travel through a park that extends from the very northernmost confines of the city to the river front on the south, and thence to the Capitol, which will give to Washington a park system without a superior in any quarter of the world.

The congress also voted an appropriation to erect to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, in Potomac park, a monument which will represent the world's most costly pile to the memory of any man. It will be situated at one end of the Mall, with the Capitol at the other, while between them towers the shaft that commemorates the life and work of Washington, and also the heroic military monument which bespeaks the nation's veneration of Grant.

Bridge to Be Memorial.

Furthermore, congress made the initial appropriation for the construction of a bridge, which will span the Potomac from the vicinity of the Lincoln monument to a point below the gates of Arlington, the home of Robert E. Lee, and now the country's most historic and famous national cemetery. This bridge will be memorial in its character, typifying the reunion of the north and south, and promises to be the greatest of its kind in the world. Still another step in the realization of the dream of the ultimate Washington was taken in the authorization of a magnificent new department building west of the new national museum, to be a fit companion to the structure and of the new department of agriculture. When these plans and others previously laid out are completed there will be a group of magnificent government buildings south of Pennsylvania avenue and east of Fifteenth street, that will be among the most imposing in the world. There is a narrow strip of land south of Pennsylvania avenue and extending to the world-famous Mall that connects the Capitol and the Washington monument. This strip of land, for the most part, is covered with cheap hotels, restaurants, rooming houses, the city's leading market, the wholesale provision and lumber districts, and the red-light district. It is the plan of the government to remove all of this, and to make it the site of new federal buildings, the expansion of the government makes necessary.

In addition to all these things, congress has provided for the creation of a small park on what is known as Meridian hill, which marks the horizon from the north front of the White house. There the people may come to get a glimpse of the city second only to that which may be enjoyed from the dome of the Capitol or from the top of the Washington monument.

Cherish Ideal Capital City.

But even when all these things have been done, the ultimate Washington still will lie in the future. Those who want to see it a capital commensurate with the wealth and dignity of the nation, representative of the national ideals of beauty and symmetry, em-

Unfortunate Monarch Will Seek to Regain Prestige

...the story of Queen Lydia, the Lithuanian, last of the dynasty, is recalled by that unfortunate Hooly-Ho, until the Sultan of the Isle of Kaiti-Kee, a practically deposed monarch, by an energetic Colorado young lady, Miss Annie G. when the latter was cast ashore on the island, the sole survivor of the shipwrecked crew.

...the band jealously conspires against him and marooned him on the island, where his exceptional natural beauty (see photograph) caused his election as sultan. Since Miss G. has forced his virtual abdication, "Hooly-Ho," or Ballard, has been a woman-hater of a most virulent type, and on his approaching tour of the United States will voice his sentiments in song. A pathetic ballad, "The Man With a Woman on His Mind," has been written especially for him by the noted composer, J. Allard Jeancon, of this city. A few bars of this song are printed herewith.

Despite his roving disposition and the bohemian influences of the broad highway, Hooly-Ho never permits himself to become careless in attire, maintaining always the strictest conformity to the decrees of fashion. The picture, which was taken by the famous Chinese artist, Bing, shows the king in the conventional evening black, as he will appear at the Burns theater March 27 and 28. The muscular development of his feet is a strong but mute evidence of the length of his travels.

Black opals, for several years extensively mined in New South Wales, have become exceedingly rare, hardly any having been found for nearly a year.

THE MODERN WOMAN

The unrest among women is the most significant feature of modern life, the most important world problem. Why do women break windows and organize parades and speak in the streets? Why do women demand the ballot? Why do women insist on a larger voice in the affairs of man and of the world?

The Modern Women ladies reply:

"For thousands of years women stayed at home and kept house. She reared children and cooked and washed and sewed. About a hundred years ago machinery began to invade her domain. One by one her arts were taken from her, until now the cooking and the washing and the sewing are done largely by machinery in factories under the direction and management of men. The State even helps in the rearing of her children in the public schools. Woman's province has been despoiled. Most of her home work has become a public work managed by men.

"The modern woman wants back her rights. She demands for the protection of her home and her family that the factory work be pure and good; that the surroundings of her children be wholesome; that her babies be not sacrificed for money. In short, she demands a voice in the control of all the influences that affect the home, even though 'home' is no longer confined by four walls but is as broad as the State."

As this demand becomes more and more insistent those who object to a change in the status of women become more and more pronounced in their opposition, so that a controversy of the first magnitude is waging.

A most exhaustive account of the activities and aspirations and accomplishments of modern women, giving the facts upon which the whole controversy is based, but without "taking sides," will appear in a series of daily articles by Frederic J. Haskin beginning in this newspaper on Wednesday, March 26.

THE CAPITAL OF CAPITALS. By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

When we go to Mexico City we find a different type of capital. It is too, is located in a valley—the historic Vale of Anahuac, capital of the Aztecs. The floor of the valley, which contains more than 500 square miles of territory, is situated a mile and a half above the level of the sea. Standing as sentinels in perpetual guard over the city are the extinct volcanoes Iztaccihuatl and Popocatepetl, their summits crowned with eternal snow. The new part of Mexico City is beautiful to look upon. With hundreds upon hundreds of residences which remind one of Sheridan and Dupont Circles in Washington, with the famous Paseo de la Reforma, wide as two great avenues with another avenue of green trees between, and magnificent circles every dozen blocks, making it one of the world's most magnificent driveways; with beautiful suburbs in every direction; the flatness of the site of the city is abundantly atoned for. But to whatever of the world's capitals one's footsteps lead, they return to the Washington of today and of tomorrow, favored by nature beyond any other capital, adorned by man as befits its natural beauty, each year growing more and more—the pride of all Americans.

THE AL. G. FIELD
GREATER MINSTRELS

"All Hallowe'en" or "Lish Murn's Dream," the dancing divarissement and scenic spectacle with the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels which comes to the Grand Opera house on Saturday March 22, 10 matinee and night, is built on an old negro tradition narrated to Field by an ex-slave. During the days before the war in the south this story was always included in mother's repertoire of bedtime stories, and the colored nurses in the homes of the whites always regaled their charges nightly with their graphic description of old Lish Murn and his dream.

In the Field production the exterior of the aged negro's cabin melts away as the Ethiopian is under the effects of a jugful of liquor he has quaffed, and the interior of the cottage is shown. Then the dream takes the spectator to Gubbin Dell, where the dancing contingent offer a number of surprising novelties.

Melting away Gubbin Dell gives place to a vivid production of Hades where Lish Murn is taken as a punishment for being a good-for-nothing nigger on earth. Here, too, the scenic effects are quite startling, and the display closes with the interior of the cabin when Lish awakens ready to take the pledge and taboo liquor for the rest of his life.

A minstrel show without music is like Hamlet with the melancholy Dane left out," says Mark Twain put it. Much is the keystone to the play, and the success of the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels to a certain degree, lies in the fact that the very best musicals have always formed a part of its ranks.

This season the silver band of old has given way to the Gold Band and all of Professor William Walters' musicians have instruments which have been finished in gold. Besides offering two daily concerts, the band appears in the opening spectacle "Minstrelsy Past and Present." This new idea has Ormond Beach, Florida, for a setting, and the mechanical effects introduced during the program includes playing fountains, waterfalls, the rolling Atlantic itself, while the electrical illumination shows something new in the stage producer's art.

"EXCUSE ME."

New York is laughing yet at "Excuse Me," the Robert Hughes' farce that ran all last season and last summer and for several weeks this season at the Gaiety theater, a total run of nine months on Broadway. Say "Excuse Me" to anybody in New York and you'll send that person into peals of laughter. It doesn't matter for what reason you say "Excuse Me." It's always a laugh, even when it's an apology for the expression suggests the farce and even a hint of the play produces howls of glee. Therefore, prepare for the laugh of your lives Monday, March 24, for "Excuse Me" will be here then to show those who see it that they have more laughs in their system than ever they dreamed of. Nobody knows how many kinds of laughs and how much laughter they are capable of until they see "Excuse Me." Here is a play that is gaily and laughter and merriment and glee and hilarity and everything else in the north line from the moment the curtain goes up until next year, for there'll be laughter at the very thought of "Excuse Me" for twelve months to come. It is a comedy on a railway train. All the action is on an Overland express running across the continent. The gosses are in the cars and the characters are the passengers and train crew. More things happen on this trip than one could imagine, and everything is a laugh. It is laughter every mile and every minute of the way. Those who miss "Excuse Me" will be sated. They'll have to say "excuse me" when they're asked about their failure to enjoy the jolliest, merriest, cleverest and best farce ever. You really ought to laugh, you know. It does one a heap of good. See "Excuse Me" and laugh all the way from Chicago to Reno.

DOPE ON THE LONDON GIRLS

Girls—Girls—Girls. Now playing the Savoy. Moved from the Opera house to the Savoy.

Today matinee and night last time "Fun in Getting Married."

Opening tomorrow—"Over the River and Charley."

New songs—new costumes—new scenery.

Motion pictures—Three thousand feet of film.

Program changes every Monday and Thursday.

An attraction well worth the price of admission.

ROSE STAHL

At the Grand Opera house, Tuesday, March 25, Miss Rose Stahl will play her new part of Maggie Pepper, in Charles Klein's play of like name. It is a play of the people no less than "The Chorus Lady," in which this start last appeared here, for Maggie Pepper is a girl of the department store. Her whole life, practically, was spent in the environment of the big mercantile institution, and the problems which she has to meet are, in the main, the problems of the girls in all cities.

Charles Klein, it is said, has handled no question of the day better than this one of the department store girls. He has written of the financiers and the police and many other timely topics, but in none has he gone closer to the heart of his subject than in "Maggie Pepper." But, granting the ability of the dramatist, it is the art of Miss Rose Stahl which in reality brings "Maggie Pepper" to life. Miss Stahl has always had a keen interest in the shop girls and their lives, and when Mr. Klein handed her this play, she began a systematic study of the girls and their problems. This enabled her to get at the heart of the question, for the actress holds that no character can be adequately interpreted unless the player is in complete sympathy with the subject.

But Miss Stahl did not let her interest stop when "Maggie Pepper" was an assured success. In every city where she plays it is her habit to study the department stores and their methods of handling employees, with the advantages given them, and the opportunities for self help. On occasions Miss Stahl has been enabled to print out to store managements where in they could better conditions, and at the same time gain for themselves

COMING TO THE PRINCESS THEATER

The management takes great pleasure in announcing the greatest picture of the century "From the Manger to the Cross," or "Jesus of Nazareth," which will be shown next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, February 24, 25 and 26. Wherever this picture has been shown it has been indorsed by nearly all the clergy, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and every Christian organization.

A half-million-dollar production. Every scene taken in the Holy Land. Of course, it's at the Princess. Watch this paper for full particulars.

THE BEN GRETT PLAYERS, THE BURNS, MONDAY NIGHT

The Ben Greet players, who have had such a successful season across the continent, will arrive in Colorado Springs next Monday morning. They play the "Comedy of Errors," in The Burns theater, next Monday night. This delightful little comedy is one of the first written by Shakespeare. It is especially adapted to the work as presented by the Ben Greet players. There is not much sentiment, but what there is, is introduced in a masterly fashion by the playwright. The characters are made to blend harmoniously with each other, and no one of them stands out more prominent than any other.

This number will close the Y. M. C. A. Star course for this season. Below we give the cast of characters:

TWO WOMEN ARRESTED

Two women were arrested last night on a charge of conducting a disorderly house immediately west of the Vendome on East Hampton street. The arrests were made by the sheriff on warrants sworn out against Eva Doe and Lucy Roe. Direct information will be filed against them in the district court. The house is run by Blanche Peltier, who was arrested recently on a charge of conducting a disorderly house in the Vendome and who will be placed on trial today in the district court.

COLUMBIA ADDS LIFE SAVING TO ITS COURSE

NEW YORK, March 18.—Life saving has been added as a part of the course in swimming in Columbia university. Hereafter a student will have to show proficiency in saving a person from drowning as well as swimming before winning a degree. Students will not only be obliged to rescue dummies from the water in the swimming pool in the basement of the college gymnasium, but will have to drag from the tank a live person who has feigned drowning.
